In this article, we'll share 80 seed bead weaving patterns in Peyote or Brick Stitch bead loom patterns. These patterns are perfect for beginners and experts alike, and they'll help you create beautiful pieces that you'll be proud to wear.

Peyote Stitch

Peyote stitch is a popular stitch for seed bead weaving because it is easy to learn and creates a strong, durable fabric. Peyote stitch is created by weaving beads together in a spiral pattern.

There are two main types of Peyote stitch: even-count Peyote stitch and odd-count Peyote stitch. Even-count Peyote stitch is created by weaving beads together in an even number of rows, while odd-count Peyote stitch is created by weaving beads together in an odd number of rows.

To create even-count Peyote stitch, you will need to start with a foundation row of beads. The number of beads in the foundation row will determine the width of the Peyote stitch fabric. Once you have created the foundation row, you will begin weaving the beads together in a spiral pattern.

To create odd-count Peyote stitch, you will need to start with a foundation row of beads that is one bead wider than the desired width of the Peyote stitch fabric. Once you have created the foundation row, you will begin weaving the beads together in a spiral pattern, skipping the first bead in each row.

Brick Stitch

Brick stitch is another popular stitch for seed bead weaving. Brick stitch is created by weaving beads together in a staggered pattern. Brick stitch is stronger and more durable than Peyote stitch, making it a good choice for pieces that will be subjected to wear and tear.

To create Brick stitch, you will need to start with a foundation row of beads. The number of beads in the foundation row will determine the width of the Brick stitch fabric. Once you have created the foundation row, you will begin weaving the beads together in a staggered pattern.

To weave the beads together in Brick stitch, you will need to pick up two beads and thread them onto the needle. Then, pass the needle through the next bead in the foundation row and pull the beads tight. Continue weaving the beads together in this manner until you have reached the end of the row.

Bead Loom Patterns

Bead loom patterns are a great way to create intricate and detailed seed bead weavings. Bead loom patterns are created by following a pattern of beads on a bead loom.

To create a bead loom pattern, you will need to start with a bead loom. Bead looms are available in a variety of sizes and shapes, so you can choose one that is the right size for your project. Once you have a bead loom, you will need to thread the beads onto the loom according to the pattern.

Once the beads are threaded onto the loom, you will begin weaving the beads together. To weave the beads together, you will need to use a needle and thread. Pass the needle through the first bead on the loom and pull the thread tight. Then, pass the needle through the next bead on the loom and pull the thread tight. Continue weaving the beads together in this manner until you have reached the end of the row.
