The Genesis of a Galactic Epic

The Foundation series had its genesis in a short story, "Foundation," published in 1942. Asimov later expanded the story into a trilogy of novels: Foundation (1951), Foundation and Empire (1952), and Second Foundation (1953). The trilogy proved immensely popular and spawned a series of prequels, sequels, and companion works that collectively comprise the Foundation universe.

Enter Hari Seldon, a brilliant mathematician who develops psychohistory, a science that allows him to predict the future course of human history.

Seldon foresees the inevitable fall of the Empire and devises a plan to preserve the knowledge and technology of humanity. He establishes two Foundations at the far ends of the galaxy, hidden from the eyes of the Empire. The Foundations' mission is to serve as repositories of knowledge and to guide the future of humanity through the tumultuous periods ahead.
